

Baby Shower Ideas: Celebrations on Paper

Tuesday, September 14, 2010

Confession: Elizabeth and I have a serious weakness for pretty paper. I'm pretty sure if we didn't have our husbands around, we would drown in a sea of paper-cuts from all of our piles of new, old, and used stationeries. Yes, I said used -- you never know when you'll be in need of some inspiration or want to reproduce that thank you note or invitation for one of your upcoming fêtes, right? And, since Elizabeth and I can't scan and share the letters and notes from our own stash of inspiration for your upcoming baby shower, we want to share with you our latest obsession: Zed & Bee.

We first heard of Zed & Bee on Design*Sponge -- and ever since then we have continued to fall in love with their work. The owners, Zoe and Billie, use a truly unique aesthetic, technique, and approach to every invitation design that their pens and pencils touch. (We aren't kidding -- every photo that Zoe sent us from their bespoke line is so insanely gorgeous and different from the next). So, if you're looking for some seriously gorgeous invitation inspiration this morning, pour yourself a cup of jo and enjoy the incredible eye candy below. (We are especially smitten with the word-search-over-coffee-and-eggs and Grandma's-apple-pie-recipe-exchange invitations -- we can just imagine the matching baby shower themes and sweet details right now!)
